THE WAR OF THE PARTIES.

THE YOUNG DEMOCRACY AND THE TWEDITES.

NEW YORK, March 28.—When it became apparent this afternoon that a disturbance would probably occur at the meeting of the Tammany general committee this evening, the Sachems of the Tammany society met in secret council and resolved not to open the hall this evening. They therefore called on Superintendent Kennedy, requesting him to have sufficient force on hand to prevent the doors from being opened. The young Democracy in the meantime had assembled at Irving hall, there patiently awaiting the hour for which the meeting at Tammany hall had been called. Halfpast seven came, and with its platoons of police from the various wards marched into Fourteenth street, completely encircling the Tammany building. An immense crowd followed them, shouting and yelling, but no disorder occurred. Finally at the hour of eight, when the young Democracy had been in session for over two hours, they sent a delegation to demand admittance to Tammany Hall. Police Inspector Walling replied that he had orders to admit nobody. Remonstrances were of no avail, as the Sachems of the Tammany society had requested the police to admit no person inside the building. This ended the controversy with the police, it being apparent that no meeting of the Tammany general committee was to be held tonight. The Democracy then returned en masse to Irving Hall, where they organized another meeting, with Senator Cremer in the chair. In the meantime the excitement around Tammany was constantly increasing. Judge Hogan, standing on the lower step of the entrance to the middle door, said that—

He understood Kennedy had issued orders not to permit any citizen to enter the hall that night, and sent nearly a thousand police to prevent the people of the great city meeting peaceably in that hall. If such were the case, Kennedy ought to open cells and imprison the people for the quiet expression of their opinions, as he did during the rebellion. He denounced this as a movement dictated by a bold species of high-handed tyranny. It was using the police force for a most improper purpose, taking them from their legitimate duties.

(A voice: "Never mind, Judge; Kennedy has not now long to live.")

Judge Hogan: "I don't know. So long as we have traitors among us, we don't know what may be done, or how long he may have to live."

At this moment Harry Gens' made his appearance and was joined by a large crowd who inquired if they were going to meet to-morrow. The Senator said—"He believed not. The police were there to prevent them from entering the hall."

There were next cries, "Where is Tweed?"

Gens—"I know nothing about him, but it is quite clear he is too cowardly to meet us here to-night. We are ready for him, but he has not come forward, although he has called the meeting."

Gens then went back to Irving Hall, where his party were in caucus. Everything here passed off very quietly, the numerous speakers denouncing their opponents and formally demanding municipal reforms for the city of New York. Tweed has gone to Albany where the fight is to be renewed to-morrow, having during the recess prepared a new charter which will be introduced to-morrow and which may still all parties.

WASHINGTON.

San Domingo.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The Senate was engaged, during the entire day yesterday, after the morning hour, in debate upon the question of annexing San Domingo. The session was secret. Senator Schurz, of Missouri, made a notable speech in opposition to the ratification of the treaty.

General Logan and Sherman.

Some time ago, General Sherman wrote a letter to Senator Wilson denouncing General Logan's army bill, and soliciting the Senate to not pass it. General Logan proposes to answer the letter on the floor of the house, treating it as a question of privilege.

His First.

Senator Revels made his first appearance as the originator of legislation today, by introducing a bill to aid in the construction of the New Orleans and Eastern railroad, which is something over 200 miles long, and runs from New Orleans to Meridian, Mississippi. He proposes to give it forty-two sections of land per mile, or so much thereof as can be got within twenty-five miles on each side of the road, which is considered a pretty fair subsidy for a beginner in this business.

United States Supreme Court.

In the Supreme Court of the United States today, the case of the First National bank of Louisville vs. the State of Kentucky, involving the question whether a State may levy tax on shares of a National bank and enforce its collection through the bank, was decided as in the Court of Appeals, and that shares of a bank as property of share holders is distinct from capital and may be taxed, and the bank may be compelled to pay the tax. The Chief Justice dissented.

XVth Amendment.

The president having changed his mind, and expressed a willingness to issue the proclamation announcing the ratification of the Fifteenth amendment as soon as Texas was admitted, an effort was made in the Senate yesterday to take up the House bill and pass it at once, but objection was made and it lies over. Another effort will be made to pass it without debate to-morrow. The president says that he will not wait for action on the Georgia bill, but will issue the proclamation as soon as Texas is admitted. There are [not] States enough without counting Georgia.

Memphis Avalanche.

The Memphis Avalanche comes down on Roderick Butler with the remark that since the unanimous vote of censure, "If Butler had the sensibilities of a Digger Indian or rhinoceros he would resign, return to East Tennessee, crawl into some mountain cave and pull the cave in after him."
